That the world might grow in compassion. Let us pray that each one of us might find consolation in a personal relationship with Jesus, and from his Heart, learn to have compassion on the world.

SPECIAL OBSERVANCES

Sunday: THE FEAST OF THE MOST HOLY TRINITY This solemnity honors the Christian doctrine of the Trinity, which encompasses the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit. It is a significant feast in the liturgical calendar, reflecting on the mystery of the Holy Trinity and its central role in Christian faith and life. The feast was established by Pope John XXII in 1334, emphasizing the importance of the Trinity in Christian worship. (EWTN Global Catholic Television Network).

Thursday: St. Romuald, Abbot (from Ravenna; founded the Camaldolese hermits, today numbering about 100 members; urged contemplative prayer through solitude, silence, and fasting.

The Most Holy Trinity

Today we celebrate the Feast of the Most Holy Trinity. It's a day for us to dwell upon the Mystery of one God in three persons; the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit. When I say Mystery, it truly is that. Mere humans cannot fully comprehend three separate persons, each of them 100% God, being one God.

But we try to understand. And there are several popular examples that help us to try to envision this idea.

There's the example of modalism. Think of water. It can be ice, liquid or steam but whatever its condition, it's always H<sub>2</sub>O. Three entities in one matter. But this doesn't work with the Trinity because God is always three different persons at the same time. Water can only be one of those depending on the external temperature. God isn't defined by external influences.

There's the model of titles. Recognizing each person of God by His function as Father, Son and Holy Spirit. I am a father, a son and a husband depending on who I'm addressing. But this doesn't apply to the Trinity of God because these are three roles that one person plays, not three distinct persons.

Then there's the model of subsets. A three leaf clover, three separate leaves makes one clover. An egg being the shell, white and yolk. The board of directors of a company is made up of a CEO, CFO and COO. Each individual is a portion of the whole. But these examples disregard that each of the three distinct persons of God are 100% fully God and not simply a subset of a greater entity. God cannot be cut up into three pieces of a pie.

Granted, these examples help us to consider the Trinity, even though we recognize that they are incomplete. But that's okay. That's where our faith in God prevails as we believe that with Him all things are possible and we accept that we don't fully understand. So instead we turn our attention onto what the Trinity is and why it's important to us.

The Trinity defines who our God is. We believe in one God, but we also believe that God is pure love. Before creation of man, without the Trinity, who would God have loved if there was only one person of God? Himself alone? That would be narcissistic and impure. Through the Trinity, we are given an awareness of the purity of God's love in the relationship of complete love between the three persons of God.

And this helps us to appreciate His loving relationship with us. Because the Father, Son, and Spirit were perfectly unified before the creation of the world, we know that He did not create us out of a desire to fill a void of love. He didn't need to create us, He was perfectly fulfilled without us. Yet He lovingly chose to create us, inviting us in to enjoy the outpouring of His infinite love within His creation.

In that love for us, each person of the Trinity brings forth the purpose of the Salvation Plan for mankind. God the Father, the Creator, in His infinite love chose to make man in His image. Through sin, man fell from that perfect image and was separated from God. But God did not desert man. Instead God progressively brought man into a deeper knowledge of Him. At the precise time, God the Son, in His love, was incarnated into man to be the perfect sacrifice that would not only reunite man with God, but would also establish eternal life with God through His resurrection. In love, God the Son ascended into heaven to intercede for man to God the Father. Yet God still did not desert man. God the Holy Spirit, in His love, was sent to place Himself within man to be our teacher and wisdom in leading us to God. God the Spirit led man to build His Church so that man could experience and grow within himself the love of others.

What amazing love our Triune God holds for us. And just as the three persons of the Trinity are mysteriously united as one, we're united with the Trinity, too, in our mission as His Church throughout the world. We are sent forward according to the plan of the Father, for obedience to the Son, in the holiness of the Spirit. And the more correctly we perceive Him in the Trinity, the more deeply we can love Him, and the more passionately we can join Him in His work throughout the world.

"...until Christ be Formed in You"

A PASTORAL LETTER TO THE PEOPLE OF GOD IN THE DIOCESE OF TYLER

I am very grateful for the warm welcome I have received here in the Diocese of Tyler. This has been true ever since being installed as your bishop on February 24, just over 100 days ago. Since that time, I have traveled around many parts of the diocese and have met many of the clergy and people who make up this local Church. I have many more places to visit and people to meet in order to understand as fully as possible the reality of the diocese and how best to serve you as your bishop.

As I have been getting to know the clergy and people of the diocese, I have also been pondering what the mission of this local Church is at this time. Of course, the mission is given to us by Jesus. It isn't something to be determined on our part as much as to be discovered, received as a gift, and responded to in faith, hope and love. I have also been praying to know what conversion of heart is needed on my part to serve the Lord here and to serve you in His name.

Pope Leo XIV offered some guidance on this at the end of his first homily on May 9, the day after his election. Addressing the cardinals in the Sistine Chapel and speaking about those, himself included, who have positions of authority in the church, he spoke of the need "to move aside so that Christ may remain, to make oneself small so that he may be known and glorified (cf. Jn 3:30, "he must increase; I must decrease"), to spend oneself to the utmost so that all may have the opportunity to know and love him."<sup>1</sup>

Saint Paul showed this same attitude in his ministry of preaching, teaching and suffering to bring Christ to birth in those to whom he was sent. He speaks of himself as a mother in labor "until Christ be formed in you" (Gal 4:19).

How is it that Christ is formed in us? How can the Word of God become flesh in us anew so that we begin again each day to follow the Lord? How do people in our culture and time encounter the beauty of Christ and allow their hearts to be captivated by Him anew as He makes all things new (cf. Rev 21:5)? And how do we share this treasure with others, especially those who live without it, by giving an account for this hope which is ours (cf. 1 Pt 3:15)?

The Lord invites us to become missionary disciples of hope. Pope Francis reminded us of this often:

Every Christian is a missionary to the extent that he or she has encountered the love of God in Christ Jesus: we no longer say that we are "disciples" and "missionaries", but rather that we are always "missionary disciples". If we are not convinced, let us look at those first disciples, who, immediately after encountering the gaze of Jesus, went forth to proclaim him joyfully: "We have found the Messiah!" (Jn 1:41)
- Evangelii Gaudium, 120

In this pastoral letter I would like to offer some brief reflections on being missionary disciples and people of hope.

Our Mission in East Texas: Missionary Disciples of Hope

What is our mission as the Church in East

Texas in 2025, where Catholics make up only 8-10% of the population? How do we go out to others in Jesus' name, with the power of his Spirit, and with a hope that burns in our hearts? How do we keep our eyes on him, and keep him at the center of our hearts?

In that same homily on May 9, Pope Leo reflected on Peter's response to Jesus "you are the Christ, the Son of the living God" from Matthew 16:15. Pope Leo noted that Peter understood two things: the gift that had been given to him; and the need to allow himself to be changed by the gift.<sup>2</sup>

God has also given a gift to each of us as individuals, and also to all of us together. The gift to work together in this time and place, to labor with the authority each of us has, to spend ourselves to the utmost so that others may have the opportunity to know and love Jesus. This is not the work and concern of only a few. Rather, it is the mission of each of the baptized. We are called to discern and live this mission together.

The Centrality of Hope

Recognizing that we are missionary disciples leads us to consider the central importance of hope, and how hope fundamentally defines our lives as Christians. Pope Benedict XVI, in his encyclical on Hope, Spe Salvi, reminded us:

We see how decisively the self-understanding of the early Christians was shaped by their having received the gift of a trustworthy hope, when we compare the Christian life with the life prior to faith, or with the situation of the followers of other religions. Paul reminds the Ephesians that before their encounter with Christ they were "without hope and without God in the world" (Eph 2:12). Of course he knew they had had gods, he knew they had had a religion, but their gods had proved questionable, and no hope emerged from their contradictory myths. Notwithstanding their gods, they were "without God" and consequently found themselves in a dark world, facing a dark future. In nihil ab nihilo quam cito recidimus (How quickly we fall back from nothing to nothing): so says an epitaph of that period...we see as a distinguishing mark of Christians the fact that they have a future: it is not that they know the details of what awaits them, but they know in general terms that their life will not end in emptiness. Only when the future is certain as a positive reality does it become possible to live the present well...The dark door of time, of the future, has been thrown open. The one who has hope lives differently; the one who hopes has been granted the gift of a new life.

- Spe Salvi, 2

Divine Hope is born of love and based on the love springing from the pierced heart of Jesus upon the cross: "For if while we were enemies, we were reconciled to God through the death of his Son, much more surely, having been reconciled, will we be saved by his life" (Rom 5:19). That life becomes manifest in our own life of faith, which begins with Baptism, develops in openness to God's grace and is enlivened by a hope constantly renewed and confirmed by the working of the Holy Spirit.

By his perennial presence in the life of the pilgrim Church, the Holy Spirit illumines all believers with the light of hope. He keeps that light burning, like an ever-burning lamp, to sustain and invigorate our lives. Christian hope does not deceive or disappoint because it is grounded in the certainty that nothing and no one may ever separate us from God's love.

Hope "does not disappoint because the love of God has been poured out into our lives through the holy Spirit that has been given to us" (Rom 5: 5). Here we see the reason why this hope perseveres in the midst of trials. Founded on faith and nurtured by charity, it enables us to press forward in life. As Saint Augustine observes, "Whatever our state of life, we cannot live without these three dispositions of the soul, namely, to believe, to hope and to love" (Spes non Confundit, 3).

Unity of Mission

In coming to know the wonderful people and the vast territory of our diocese, I recognize there is a great desire for unity of mission in service of Christ and His Church. When the Diocese of Tyler was established in 1987, the area was recognized as part of the “bible belt” of the United States. Yet now secularization has taken a toll on the culture of East Texas, and we find ourselves in an increasingly post-Christian milieu. It is in these circumstances that we have received a mandate to be missionary disciples of hope, to bring the light of the Gospel to people who have never heard it or don’t think they have anything to gain from it.

In considering how to put into words the mission of our Church, I want to refer to Pope Leo’s address to the cardinals on May 10, two days after his election. He said the following:

I would like us to renew together today our complete commitment to the path that the universal Church has now followed for decades in the wake of the Second Vatican Council. Pope Francis masterfully and concretely set it forth in the Apostolic Exhortation Evangelii Gaudium, from which I would like to highlight several fundamental points:

- 1) the return to the primacy of Christ in proclamation (cf. No. 11);
- 2) the missionary conversion of the entire Christian community (cf. No. 9);
- 3) growth in collegiality and synodality (cf. No. 33);
- 4) attention to the sensus fidei (cf. Nos. 119-120), especially in its most authentic and inclusive forms, such as popular piety (cf. No. 123);
- 5) loving care for the least and the rejected (cf. No. 53);
- 6) courageous and trusting dialogue with the contemporary world in its various components and realities (cf. No. 84; Second Vatican Council, Pastoral Constitution Gaudium et Spes, 1-2).<sup>3</sup>

This complete commitment to the path of our Holy Church is the proper response to the mandate of Jesus Christ. As the Diocese of Tyler approaches its 40th anniversary in 2027, it is a good time to take a fresh look at how we live out our response to the mission, and how we should live as missionary disciples of hope.

Some Next Steps

This brief pastoral letter has expressed in a preliminary way the reality of our identity as missionary disciples of hope. The following are some first steps that we will undertake to develop a pastoral plan to support our missionary work of proclaiming Jesus Christ. Some are upcoming events already scheduled, that will help with the further unfolding of this plan and serve to develop a common vision: Missionary disciples of hope. Others are in the initial planning stages:

1. Upcoming events:
  - Diocesan Formation Conference on Saturday, August 2
  - DCYC (Diocesan Catholic Youth Conference) on Saturday, October 4
2. A taskforce to be established to focus on mission and vision for our Church.
3. The diocesan Offices of Family Life and Faith Formation will be working in close collaboration to best foster faith-filled disciples and holy families.
4. As a follow up on the self-assessments the parishes provided before my arrival, work will begin on developing a diocesan-wide process for listening.

Pentecost

As we celebrate Pentecost and I complete my first 100 days as your bishop, I am filled with gratitude for the opportunity given to me to serve you in this ministry. I have many times been deeply moved in meeting so many good people of faith, and hearing of their joys and sorrows, and of their deep love for Christ and His Church. Let us be united in prayer that we may all have an openness to the Holy Spirit as we begin to intentionally focus on growing as a community of missionary disciples witnessing to the saving hope which is Jesus Christ. May our efforts be fruitful to the Glory of God.

At the end of his life, ill and dying, Saint Francis of Assisi told his fellow friars, “Let us begin, brothers, to serve the Lord God, for up until now we have done little or nothing.” His first biographer Thomas of Celano comments on the saint's exhortation: "[Francis] did not consider that he had already attained his goal, but tireless in pursuit of holy newness, he constantly hoped to begin again."<sup>4</sup>

My brothers and sisters, let us begin again. As Jesus said to the Apostles, he says to each of us "You did not choose me; I chose you" (Jn 15:16); to be genuine disciples committed to the mission of Christ. To begin to understand the gift of Christ's life in us, initiated in Baptism, strengthened in Confirmation, nourished constantly by the Eucharist, and purified by Penance. Following our Holy Father's first homily and his reflection on Peter, we can pray to see the gifts God has given each one of us, gifts as unique and irreplaceable as that given to Peter and to his successors through the centuries, gifts of fundamental importance, with consequences in our lives in time and in eternity, and to receive fully these gifts and to allow ourselves to be changed by them.

As we celebrate the Solemnity of Pentecost, we recall the initial gift of the Holy Spirit to the apostles for the mission to the ends of the earth. This gift is given to us anew and is poured out each day upon us, in abundance, for the mission that is given to us now in East Texas.

We live in this world as pilgrims for only a short time. This world which struggles in so many ways is very quickly passing away. As Pope Francis wrote in his initial Apostolic Exhortation in 2013, The Joy of the Gospel:

The Holy Spirit works as he wills, when he wills and where he wills; we entrust ourselves without pretending to see striking results. We know only that our commitment is necessary. Let us learn to rest in the tenderness of the arms of the Father amid our creative and generous commitment. Let us keep marching forward; let us give him everything, allowing him to make our efforts bear fruit in his good time.
